

IN BRIEF | Born in Fall River Massachusetts, the youngest of seven from a sax playing electronics technician father and a mother in nursing, Mark Lizotte aka DIESEL grew up in Australia and in the U.S. He formed the band 'Johnny Diesel & The Injectors' in 1986 from remnants of a previous band before embarking on a solo career in 1991.

In 2017 Diesel celebrated 30 years "off the bus" landing in Sydney in 1987 after a 3-day bus journey across Australia, launching into 9 shows per week - the rest is history. With over thirty five singles, sixteen albums, 6 ARIA awards and record sales edging 1 million, DIESEL is a journeyman of music.

With blues music in his DNA, an influence largely from his Father's record collection, DIESEL has blended styles to come up with a truly unique sound, punctuated with his distinct guitar playing and vocals.

...DID YOU KNOW?

DIESEL started his experience with "strings" playing cello at the age of 8, not getting a guitar till the age of fourteen. He would later draw from his classical training with string arrangements making it in to many of his recordings and live performances.

The name DIESEL

The band's name was never meant to be permanent; nor was 'Diesel' meant to be Mark's stage name. Both came about as the result of a casual joke concerning the band's bass player, John Dalzall. "John had one kid and another on the way" Mark explains. "A friend of ours used to refer to them as 'Johnny Diesel and his little injectors', I thought it was funny".

Then I got a call from the woman from the [Perth] venue where we were playing one night a week... "You're starting to draw a few people," she said. "I'm going to put an ad in the paper, does this nameless band have a name?" I told her we were "Johnny Diesel and the Injectors".

"It was just a joke. I wanted it to appear in the newspaper to amuse John Dalzall but the name stuck."

"When we got to Sydney [in September 1987], our Management said, "Everyone will think you're Johnny Diesel. Are you going to go along with it?" I wasn't going to be stuck-in-the-mud, so I said, yeah. Whatever... fine."

DIESEL was a natural choice for recognition sake when departing the band and going solo in 1991.
